Location

The former Rhino nightclub and Cafe Rumi's is located on the corner of Bedford Place and Waterloo Terrace, the heart of one of Southampton's established leisure locations which centres around Bedford Place, Carlton Place and London Road just north of the City Centre. Corporate and independent operators in the area include Revolution, Orange Rooms, The Social, Popworld, London Road Brewhouse, 90 Degrees, Giddy Bridge (JD Wetherspoon) and Bedford Arms (Stonegate).

Southampton is one of the south's liveliest and most dynamic cities and benefits from good transport links throughout the UK by road, rail, air and sea. The University of Southampton, Solent University and campuses accommodate large numbers of students (c.25,000) in addition to office and residential population. Estimated population is currently 254,275 (Mid-Year Estimate 2016).

Description

The property comprises an end of terrace two storey building of brick construction under a pitched slate roof.

The ground floor comprises, to the front, an open plan regular trading area with single bar-server and bench seating; it previously operated as a café. To the rear is a separate trade area, previously operated as a nightclub over two floors, with potential to be amalgamated. The first floor accommodation is laid out to provide a single trade space connected by stairs to the ground floor nightclub. There is also a small basement storage area.
