A new dawn for Bristol Harbour

Brandon Yard is a prestigious waterfront development of 1, 2 and 3-bedroom homes that occupy the last available position on the northern section of Bristol's Harbourside.

Lying opposite Brunel's SS Great Britain in the City Docks Conservation Area, Brandon Yard represents the conclusion of the massive regeneration programme that has been transforming Bristol's historic docks over the last 40 years.

This is a rare opportunity to become part of an innovative cultural and creative quarter formed of new homes, modern amenities, listed buildings and Victorian warehouses overlooking Bristol's Floating Harbour.

The evolution of Brandon Yard

The earliest recorded structure on the Brandon Yard site was the Limekiln Glassworks, built in the late 17th century and demolished in 1838. The site then underwent a brief period as a timber yard before being transformed into The Canon's Marsh Gasworks in the late 19th century.

The decline of the docklands began in the 1960s which led to the closure of the gasworks and ever since the land has been dormant. The once derelict industrial buildings now begin a new chapter as distinctive and stylish homes that preserve the memory of the city's maritime heritage.

A synthesis of heritage & design

Brandon Yard is a unique combination of design opportunities and a dream to any architect. Creating a courtyard facing south over a river is a perfect starting point and made all the more special with views of an iconic piece of Britain's heritage, the SS Great Britain. The site is grounded in the industrial history which makes Bristol the thriving city it is today. The existing structures of Engine House and Oculus House are bounded by a stone wall which looks carved from pure rock, and edged by the evocatively named Lime Kiln Road and Gasworks Lane.

Acorn chose to work with local award winning architect AWW for their experience in converting and renovating heritage industrial buildings along with their design skills in creating attractive contemporary apartments. AWW have a wealth of experience in this field having successfully converted Purifier House adjacent to Brandon Yard in 2015.

History never stops but moves with time. The design team felt it was important that renovating these buildings, and any new buildings on the site, should be clearly contemporary whilst respecting the heritage character of the place. This is seen most clearly in the New Retort House which has generous areas of glazing facing onto the courtyard, river facing balconies, terraces and a sleek floating roof. The carefully selected materials of brick, stone, glass, zinc and aluminium provide a palette which complements the monumental quality of the old stonework. Modern intervention of the long glazed roof gallery into Oculus House provides a dramatic contrast between lightness and strength, complementing each other to provide a rich and layered architecture.

Light, space and views have been maximised. The windows on both Engine House and Oculus House will have splayed reveals which wash light in to the interiors and provide window seats for taking in the sun and the views. New Retort House is even more highly glazed opening up wherever possible to the river, the courtyard and to the south. It has a robust and elegant rhythm of double height bays framed with a brick carefully selected to highlight the colours and character of the stone, infilled with floor to ceiling glazing and metal panels which reflect the industrial character of the site.

One of the most attractive spots in Bristol, the design team are very excited to see this project develop and renew the culture and heritage of Bristol's rich industrial past whilst providing new, exciting living opportunities.

Historical Harbourside

Bristol was trading with Spain, Portugal and Iceland whilst New World colonies were being founded as early as the 14th century. The city's trading fortunes were enriched in 1809 by the opening of the Floating Harbour which overcame the challenges of having the second highest tidal range in the world.

This led to larger and more sophisticated ships being built, notably Brunel's oak-hulled paddle-wheel steamship the SS Great Western and the SS Great Britain, the first ocean-going iron ship.

Timeline

CANON'S MARSH GASWORKS, BRISTOL 1972

The heart and soul of the Harbourside

The imposing docklands buildings and pioneering ships that are permanently berthed here form the foundation of Bristol's Harbourside. Former workshops and warehouses have largely been converted or replaced by cultural venues, museums and galleries.

The renaissance that began with the opening of the Arnolfini art gallery in the mid-1970s and later the Watershed media and arts centre has led to the birth of a new cultural quarter. Over the past forty years the area has undergone major changes culminating in the the opening of the At-Bristol science museum and Millennium Square.

This is a thriving and vibrant area that is enhanced by the waters of the Floating Harbour and the River Avon which flow through the district in parallel. Waterside restaurants and bars jostle to offer the best views whilst water sports, sailing boats and ferries ensure a constantly changing backdrop.

Lively markets and festivals populate the cultural calendar, the harbour is host to street food stalls and live music with independent shops selling jewellery, handcrafts or homewares. The Bristol Harbour Festival is the Summer highlight parading a spectacle of tall ships, Royal Navy vessels and boats of all shapes and sizes.

The vibrancy and vitality of Bristol

In March 2017, the Sunday Times crowned Bristol as their ‘Best Place to Live 2017’. It’s an obvious choice in many ways – the proximity to countryside and seaside, excellent transport links, impressive schools, an extraordinary culinary scene and pioneering redevelopment. As home editor Helen Davies said: “We sum the city up as cool, classy and supremely creative.”

Bristol is a cosmopolitan, vivacious and forward-thinking city that respects the past and is fully prepared to embrace the future. The city offers a desirable work-life balance and is overflowing with ultra-modern amenities as well as many celebrated cultural attractions. With around 450,000 inhabitants, this thriving centre is Britain's tenth largest city with a largely young population fuelled by its two universities.

Bristol has a rich tradition in theatre and the arts, demonstrated by historic venues such as the Theatre Royal, the oldest working theatre in the country and Bristol's Old Vic. The Arnolfini offers music, dance, cinema and exhibition galleries and the Hippodrome stages ballet, opera, pantomime and concerts. The reclusive Banksy was born here and several of his celebrated artworks are scattered throughout the city.

There is an eclectic mix of shops ranging from traditional markets to high street malls with the more exclusive shops found on Quakers Friars or in upmarket Clifton. The city is bursting with places to eat from traditional tea shops and casual bistros to Michelin-starred restaurants.

Brandon Yard

After a 250-year history of industrial use, the two Grade II listed buildings at Brandon Yard are starting on a new journey. A third building, New Retort House, has been designed to complement the original buildings. Each block encompasses a central courtyard with paving and planting, benches and lighting that is solely for use by the residents.

The harbourside walk in front of Brandon Yard is being enhanced and will provide a pedestrian and cycle thoroughway to the rest of the Floating Harbour.

NEW RETORT HOUSE

New Retort House is a striking new building characterised by clear and opaque glazed panels and brickwork designed to complement the appearance and ambience of its setting.

Many of the 1 to 3-bedroom apartments enjoy outside space with inset balconies or more extensive terraces and the views from the upper levels are spectacular. The ground floor offers undercroft parking for vehicles and secure cycle storage.
