SITUATION

Piteadie House is set on the southern slope of a hill in the rolling Fife farmland. The property is surrounded by countryside on all sides and has glorious views to the south over the Firth of Forth.

The property is rural but is conveniently situated for amenities and transport links. The Forth Road Bridge is 12 miles away, with Edinburgh Airport and the city centre only 20 miles and 24 miles respectively. Kirkcaldy and Inverkeithing have railway stations on the main east coast line, which provide services to Dundee, Aberdeen, Edinburgh and London.

Kirkcaldy provides all essential facilities including supermarkets, shops, schools, professional services and a hospital. The Fife Coastal Path is an attractive walk which links Kirkcaldy to Kinghorn and Aberdour. There are golf courses at Kinghorn, Aberdour, Kirkcaldy and Burntisland with a further selection of links courses along the Fife coast. St Andrews, the "Home of Golf", is 26 miles to the north.

LOT 1: PITEADIE HOUSE

Piteadie House is an early Georgian farmhouse which was gentrified in Victorian times, probably around 1840. A symmetrical new front façade was added with stone around the ground floor windows and with a sun room at the front door.

The present owners bought the house in 2014 and have carried out a major upgrading programme which has included refurbishing the house, the cottage and the outbuildings

ACCOMMODATION

Piteadie House is set in gardens and grounds extending to about 4 acres. The house faces south and its garden has been designed to frame the stunning views to the sea.

A tree-lined drive from the B9157 leads up to the rear of the house. The formal drive is to the left and leads to a gravel parking area. The everyday entrance to the house is through the courtyard.

At the front of the house is a sun room with a tiled vestibule connecting to a reception hall which gives access to all the principal rooms. Stairs rise up to the first floor.

The drawing room and morning room are nicely proportioned, bright south-facing rooms. Both have window shutters, wall presses and open fireplaces with marble surrounds containing wood-burning stoves. Glazed sliding doors link the drawing room to the dining room which has an open fireplace containing a further wood-burning stove. Off the dining room is a study with a bay window, a fireplace and a wood-burning stove, and a small vestibule with a cloakroom and side door to the garden.

A new kitchen with a four oven electric Aga was installed as part of the refurbishment. A stable door links to the morning room.

The back hall gives access to a WC, pantry, dairy, boot room and laundry.

The principal staircase rises from the reception hall to the first floor landing. There are five good sized double bedrooms and a family bathroom. In addition, at the end of the corridor is a principal bedroom with its own bathroom and a dressing room.

STEADING

To the west of the house is a stone built range of sheds under a pitched pantile roof. This offers extensive space comprising:

Workshop with cobbled floor. Garden store to side. Store with double wooden doors. Four car garage with double wooden doors. Wood shed with open sides. Cart shed with corrugated iron roof. Workshop above accessed by external stone steps. The steading building and workshop have light and power, and the workshop is heated by the main house central heating system.

The garage adjoining Piteadie Cottage has two sliding wooden doors, light and power. It contains the Biomass Heating boiler (which provides heating and hot water to both the main house and cottage), water tank and a pellet storage area in a separate room.

There is a new Alitex greenhouse with light and power. Brick and aluminum construction, including built-in cold frames.

PITEADIE COTTAGE

Piteadie Cottage is built of rendered stone under a part-tiled and part-slate roof. The accommodation comprises a sitting room, kitchen, master bedroom with en-suite shower room, two further bedrooms and a family bathroom.

The cottage is currently used for holiday lets and generates a good income. The vendors would be prepared to sell by separate negotiation most of the cottage contents (furniture, bedding, crockery, cutlery, kitchen utensils, etc) to the purchaser to allow continuation of the letting business or otherwise.

GARDENS AND GROUNDS

The house is surrounded by wooded policies with mature trees and colourful shrubs including rhododendrons, hydrangeas, pieris and buddleias. Immediately in front of the house is a raised paved terrace with ornamental balustrades. Stone steps lead down to a large lawn below. This is flanked on either side by a variety of shrubs and trees. A beech hedge divides off the lower garden where a central path is lined by a low box hedge.

To the west of the property there is a woodland garden carpeted with snowdrops in the late winter followed by daffodils and then bluebells in the spring.

LOT 2: PITEADIE CASTLE

To the south of the garden are the ruins of Pitteadie Castle which it is believed originates from the late 15th century. It was partially rebuilt in the 17th century with the addition of a stair tower. In the wall is an arched gateway with a pediment carved with a coat of arms. There is a single storey outbuilding (gatehouse) to the side, also ruinous.

The castle was featured in Nigel Tranter's novel about James II of Scotland and his protector Alexander Lyon.

Adjacent to the castle is a disused tennis court with a stone-built pavilion. There is a poly tunnel and a chicken coop in the garden. There is also a former kitchen garden with the remains of a greenhouse and a potting shed. There is an orchard containing around 30 fruit trees to the east of the castle. The grounds of the castle extend to about 3.8 acres.

HISTORIC ENVIRONMENT SCOTLAND

Historic Environment Scotland advise that any proposals to renovate or refurbish the castle including for use as a residential dwelling should seek to preserve the cultural significance and special interest of the castle, and that any work should be sensitive and safeguard the continued importance of the building for the future.

In reviewing options for the castle's future, restoration so that it could be used as a dwelling could be viewed as an opportunity to ensure its long-term preservation. It might also be worth considering whether there is potential for development within the remains of the later building attached to the northeast elevation which is not scheduled:
